LASSIES OF SCOTLAND FAIR

ARE JOINED BY YOUNG MEN FROM OGDEN.

"Bert" Hadley Writes Home, Describing His Travels in the British Isles—Now in London.

The following are extracts from letters written by "Bert" Hadley who, with Dr. Forbes, is touring Europe. The letters were written to his folks in Ogden.

"Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 8, 09. Forgive me for not writing sooner, but I have been so busy with the fair, that I have not had time to do so."

"My last letter was from Preston, England, en route for Glasgow. Dr. Forbes and I arrived in due time and have spent two very pleasant and instructive days in this beautiful city. Glasgow has a claim to be almost, if not equal, to Chester, but lacks the Roman remains, walls, towers, etc., to prove it. It is a fine city with many historical places of interest. We went out to Bothwell castle today and visited the old Priory across the river. Shakespeare often speaks of Bothwell Castle. The Scottish chief, Wallace, leaped from one of the windows to escape the English soldiers. Wallace was born a few miles west of Glasgow."

A short ride took us to the birthplace of the great explorer, Livingstone who has descendants in Ogden. We visited the Bothwell coal mines. Yesterday we took in the Art Gallery and Museum which are both very fine."

"I left a roll of films here for development, which will be forwarded to me at Edinburgh, and I think you will be able to tell whether they are pictures of buildings or 'crazy-quits'."

The Scotch language beats us as completely as the Irish brogue, and we have the French, German, Italian and Turkish yet to tackle. I wish Esperanto had been invented a hundred years ago, so as to have been in general use today. We find that a little broken English punctuated with a liberal tip helps the other fellow to understand."

"The scenery is wonderfully interesting. Everything is cultivated, hedged and walled."

"The roads are like pavement. All railroad crossings are bridged or passed under. The roadbeds are far better than ours and trains make better speed with less danger of accidents. Accommodations are better and fares cheaper than in the States."

"Send you books, papers and catalogues by mail. Postage from here to Ogden is the same as from Salt Lake to Ogden—a wonderful fact."

"We shall be able to do a museum or art gallery in short order. A painting of Sir Walter Scott in twenty galleries looks the same and old armor and old battle axes get monotonous after awhile. We shall let nothing new or unusual escape us. The every-day sights, customs and conditions we meet on the streets and in the suburbs are interesting and often amusing. The combination of traveling and living in this country is a science and can only be successfully studied on the ground. There are a few 'curves' that the Dr. and I have not mastered, but we learn easy."

"Experience is fast increasing service and decreasing expenses with us. The guide to Glasgow I mail you, will well repay a careful examination. We shall start for Edinburgh at once and should reach it in an hour."

(Signed) "BERT."

"London, Eng., Aug. 13, 09. We arrived in Edinburgh on the 10th and spent two days—long to be remembered. We shall not soon forget the Scotch Cameron Highlanders and their wonderful drill and evolutions. Edinburgh Castle will loom up in our memory for many years, also Scott's monument and the beautiful surroundings. Calton Hill and a hundred other places and structures of great interest."

"The famed 'bonnie Scotch lassies' I assure you, are no fake and I have an idea that the vision of some of them will get mixed with castles and crags in the doctor's memory. The doctor has a critical eye for beauty."

"I have mailed you fifty fine views and among them are many of Edinburgh that will show you more of that city than I could tell you in a long letter."

"A man cannot be in London and enthrall much over any place, at least, not the first few days. We arrived here on the 10th at 9:30 p. m. We secured our rooms and started out to do London by electric and gas light. We walked about five miles before turning in. Down Kings Way to the Strand, to Trafalgar Square, White Hall Road, Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, over to the Thames, around Thames embankment, past Waterloo Bridge, up to Fleet street and there took a motor bus back to our hotel. It was a trip that every step counted."

"London is awful big and busy with clean and nice streets. Yesterday Doctor and I were measured for a suit of clothes, fine gray Irish tweed that will cost us half what it would in Chicago."

"We went down to Mr. Gillett's place of business and I was fortunate in getting eight letters. Doctor did not fare so well. Mr. Gillett is a brother of Mrs. Hutchinson of Ogden. He is a very fine man and has treated us with great cordiality which we appreciate. We reach points of interest by motor bus, horse bus or tube (underground) trolley. There are no street cars in the main part of London, but thousands of big double-decked busses, cabs and autos (taxicabs)."

"We spent yesterday in the medieval room of the British Museum. They have a very nice descriptive and illustrated guide books of the different departments. I send you two of them, also a circular from which you can mark the ones you would like me to get. I saw Jim Corbett at the Oxford Music Hall and had a talk with him. Mail arrives from the United States twice a week and goes as often, which will explain delay of mail."

(Signed) "BERT."

REGRETS EXPRESSED OVER DEATH OF HARRIMAN

That the death of President Harriman has left a trail of profound sorrow extending across the continent and over the various lines of road comprising the great system bearing his name, is evident from the expressions of genuine regret heard in the various offices throughout and about railroad headquarters in this city.

Although dominating hundreds of millions in capital—a veritable czar in Wall street and a wizard in railroad circles—and controlling vast railway and subsidiary interests in the west, Mr. Harriman had a happy faculty of getting into close personal touch with all of his officials, from the general managers down the line to division and district officials, and when he went over their roads on a special train he met and conversed with them all, leaving an indelible imprint of his marvelous ability and broad-gauged ideas on each. He was regarded as a great man in the broad sense of that term and it was considered an honor to be even remotely associated with him in the conduct of any railroad system.

FACULTY OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

SCHOLARSHIP OF THOSE WHO ARE TO TEACH THIS YEAR.

Board of Education Meets and Decides to Visit West Ogden Next Week.

The city board of education held a brief session this morning for the purpose of going over the school situation, immediately prior to the opening of the High School, which will take place Monday morning. The two lower floors of the new building will be ready for occupancy and the board will have to get along with that condition until the higher portion of the building can be made ready for the school work.

Aside from the report of Superintendent Mills regarding the condition of the schools generally, the board did nothing of particular importance, and the session was confined to routine business. In order to settle the matter of whether the West Ogden school shall be maintained this winter or whether the students shall be conveyed to another school, the board decided to visit the district next week and meet with the board of education.

The report of Superintendent Mills as to the opening of the schools of the city outside the High School is encouraging and it is a source of much gratification to the board. The report indicated that the schools opened under favorable conditions and that the attendance was all that could be expected.

Superintendent Mills and the board of education have been laboring consistently to secure modern high school facilities for Ogden. Their efforts met with hearty co-operation.

A modern high school building is being completed at a cost of $104,000. Great effort has been made to bring the high school faculty up to the highest standard. The members are graduates of colleges or other reputable institutions and all have good records in the school world.

Principal J. O. Cross, A. B., was a student of Carleton College of Northfield, Minn., and has his college degree from the University of Utah. Mr. Cross has a long record as a successful principal in the Salt Lake City schools. He also has an enviable record as an athletic trainer in Salt Lake and Provo.

B. A. Perkins, A. B. (Stanford University), instructor in chemistry and physics. Mr. Perkins, in addition to taking his degree at Stanford, has been a student at the summer sessions of the University of Chicago and the University of California. He has had seven years' experience in teaching.

G. H. Kellogg, B. S. (Kansas Agricultural College), instructor in natural science. Mr. Kellogg comes from Wilson, Kansas, where he was principal of the high school.

Thomas M. Henley, Ph. B. (University of Chicago), instructor in English. Mr. Henley brings very high recommendations from the University of Chicago faculty.

W. E. Archibold, A. B. (Brown University), instructor in history. Mr. Archibold has had ten years' experience as teacher, five of which he was principal.

J. E. Beeson, B. S. (De Pauw University), Mr. Beeson is the instructor in mathematics, and has had several years' successful experience.

S. McD. Rabourne, A. B. and A. M. (University of Missouri and Bryn Mawr College), instructor in Latin and Greek.

Hazel B. Stevens, A. B., University of Utah, instructor in English.

George M. Brown, B. S. (University of Utah), athletic director. Mr. Brown was a member of the victorious foot-

AMUSEMENTS.

REOPENING OF THE METHODIST CHURCH

Since the middle of June the auditorium of the Methodist Church has been closed because of repairs. In this time the tower has been remodeled so that it now has a more modern and attractive effect. The tuck-pointing on the tower has been thoroughly restored and the stains have been washed off the brick work. Mr. G. A. Graves being the architect in charge. This work has proven quite an expense, but the citizens have responded enthusiastically and the entire city is taking a pride in its appearance. The Ladies' Aid Society of the church had not been idle, but for the entire winter had been laying aside money for new steps. These have just been completed, according to plans drawn by City Engineer A. F. Parker. There is a substantial coping reaching out from the pilasters in the front and wide steps in between with a six-inch raise and a foot tread. Narrower steps with a steeper pitch were necessary on the east side. The tower now adds the appearance of dignity and massiveness to the entire church and is an ornament which not only improves the appearance of Twenty-fourth street, but which is a credit to the entire city.

In connection with the reopening the services will be made of special interest Sunday.
